

Motivation Letter

Dear Hiring Manager,

My name is Egor Krivonosov, I am glad to apply for a job in your company. I am a graduate of ITMO University with a bachelor's degree in System and Application Software. Throughout my academic journey I actively participated in programming contests and Olympiads organized by Selectel, ITMO University, where I came out as a winner or prize-winner.

For the last few years I have been working in the laboratory of ITMO University (Cloud Solution and Modelling). My work in the projects consisted of both server side (backend) and client side (frontend) development. Working in this role allowed me to gain valuable skills in developing distributed systems, cloud systems, working with relational and time series databases, as well as to get acquainted with the realities of software development. I would also like to mention that I have experience in leading a team of 4 developers, successfully managing projects under tight deadlines.

I am also well versed in working with big data, as evidenced by my professional retraining and obtaining a red diploma in this field.

Likewise, I believe it is important to create a comfortable working environment, and I actively work to ensure that my team has friendly and respectful relationships. For this purpose, I try to organize trips with my team to different interesting places at least twice a month to bring our relationship together.

I am enthusiastic about the opportunity to share my skills and further strengthen them in your esteemed company. Thank you for considering my employment. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss my qualifications in person. I have also attached my CV to this application.

Yours sincerely,
Egor Krivonosov
